Dear Senator:

This is a brief letter with a straightforward message: The leadership of the National Council of Churches is holding you and your colleagues in prayer as Congress moves toward passage of a desperately-needed reform of this country's health care system. As President Obama has said, the time for debating is behind us. What is needed now is the political and moral courage to act on behalf of the most vulnerable members of our society – those who are uninsured.

In this holy season of Lent, we pray that Congress will find such courage. May we as a nation demonstrate a commitment to the common good through a health care reform that places the well being of all at the center of our national life.

Sincerely,

Michael Kinnamon
General Secretary
National Council of Churches
