NOTE: Journalists representing legitimate and approved media, including freelancers, are welcome to cover all NCC meetings. Credentials are only for the specific meeting or meetings requested. Photographers, video crews and sound technicians may operate during all meeting sessions except when forbidden by the presiding officer for special reasons, including prayer and worship services. Some meetings may be closed to the press if they involve personnel and financial matters, discussion of employees assigned to sensitive areas in or outside the U.S., or other extraordinary topics, but the presiding officer will announce immediately after the closed session the actions taken. Journalists may not ask questions or participate in discussions during the public sessions of meetings but should contact the Media Relations Specialist or other NCC communications staff for information or to arrange interviews. Unless approved by the Media Relations Specialist, members of NCC assemblies, boards, commissions, committees or staff may not cover meetings for outside media outlets.
